

SUDAN

THE ROOTS OF FAMINE

OXFAM

A Report for Oxfam by Nick Cater

no. 111 pub/12/16

SUDAN

THE ROOTS OF FAMINE

Contents

Dates and Events	i
Introduction	1
Climate: A pattern of drought	4
Water: Blessing and curse	6
Land: High pressure, diminishing returns	8
Trees: Fuelling the crisis	10
Livestock: Too much of a good thing	12
Tenure: Who owns Sudan?	14
Credit: A lack of bootstraps?	16
Fatma's Day: A day in the life of a Sudanese woman	17
Markets: Few rural bargains	20
Mechanised Farming: Environmental hit-and-run	22
Irrigation: High cost crops	24
Local Government: Responsibility without power	26
Central Government: Ignoring the grassroots	28
Economy: Deeper in debt	30
Aid: Big is still beautiful	32
Conclusion: A future after famine	34
Sources and further reading	35

In Brief . . .

Regional Profile	i
Facts and Figures	1
Refugees	2
Famine Forecasting	4
Ahmed's Year	5
A Cautionary Tale: Gum Arabic	10
Positive Points 1: A Little Credit Goes a Long Way	16
Women	18
Local Trades	20
Positive Points 2: How Kebkabiya's Gardens Grow	24
Health	26
The Brain Drain	28
Roads and Rail	30
A Cautionary Tale II: The Jonglei Canal	32

© Oxfam/Nick Cater 1986.

Typeset by Typo Graphics, Oxford.
Printed by: Express Litho Service (Oxford).

Published by Oxfam,
274 Banbury Road
Oxford OX2 7DZ

A Report for Oxfam by Nick Cater

OXFAM
LIBRARY Middle East

Cover: Finding scarce fuel in western Sudan (Oxfam)